195	DisclosureRegardingIdentificationOfCost en	Cost Centre is any unit of cost accounting selected with a view to accumulating all cost under that unit. The unit may be a product, a service, division, department, section, a group of plant and machinery, a group of employees or a combination of several units. This may also be a budget centre. Cost centre or cost object is the logical sub-unit for collection of cost. Cost centre may be of two types - personal and impersonal cost centres. Personal cost centre consists of a person or a group of persons. Cost centres which are not personal cost centres are impersonal cost centre's. Again Cost centre's may be divided into broad types i.e. production cost centre's and service cost centre's. Production cost centre's are those which are engaged in production like machine shop, welding shop, assembly shop etc. service cost centres are for rendering service to production cost centre like power house, maintenance, stores, purchase office etc. cost object includes a product, service, cost centre, activity, sub-activity, project, contract, customer or distribution channel or any other unit in relation to which costs are finally ascertained
